dangerous as the real world -
if not more so!

Program developed by Detective John Taylor • Pima County Attorney's Office, Investigation Division

KEEPING KIDS SAFE ON THE INTERNET

Learn how to recognize danger and risks

- Who are the victims?
- Who are the predators?
- What are they looking for?
- How do the predators operate?
- Why does this happen?
- When are children most vulnerable?

Learn to keep your children safe

- Is the bedroom the best place for the computer?
- How can you monitor web sites children are visiting?
- What do children need to know about giving out personal information?
- Are blocking and filtering programs effective?
- What are some danger signs to watch for?

Learn to protect your identity on the internet

- How can you keep children safe at home and school?
- How can you hide your online identity?
- How can you establish anonymous email accounts?
- Should children post profiles?
- How can you avoid giving out personal information?
- Who can you contact for help?

What can you do?

- Remember that people online may not be who they seem to be and everything you read online may not be true.
- Teach children rules for using the internet, create a comfortable environment, set reasonable guidelines and monitor their online activity.
- Get to know their “online friends” just as you know their school and neighborhood friends.
- Don’t be frightened and overwhelmed by technology—learn how to use filtering software.
